

Catherine Dominick

Catherine Dominick is a Birmingham and France based artist who studied painting under Professor Alvin Sella at the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa. She happily divides her time between Birmingham and her second home in a tiny medieval village in the south of France. While in France she enjoys traveling and studying the great masters of modern art, particularly those whose works are displayed in Paris and throughout the south of France.

In May of 2008, Catherine made her international debut in Grasse, France as the first American artist to show at the Place de la Poissonnerie in the city's historic old town. Nine large, formal abstract nudes were the centerpiece of the exhibition. In the fall of 2008 Catherine was thrilled to contribute several figure paintings to be shown in Mobile, Al at Space 301 during Alvin Sella's "Recent Works Exhibit." She has also exhibited her art in Mobile at Wellborn Ideas in November of 2009 and in Birmingham at the 2003 & 2009 ARTWALK, 2003 & 2004 Art in Avondale Park, and in 2004 & 2005 at Space One Eleven.
